"Take my 'queer membership card,' then. In fact, I'll gladly set it on fire and watch it burn before I ever let someone tell me — or any other asexual person — that access to our bodies is the price we pay to be queer."

I'm queer and asexual. If that's a problem, by all means, revoke my membership.

If asexual people can't identify as queer, where should they go when they feel broken?

Unlike Mr. Joecks, we at Gender Justice Nevada listen to young persons and families every week in the groups we share. What we have learned to begin with is that they can tell us who they are. (And isn't that one of the foundations of our country, the freedom to be who we are?!) As we listen further, we don't hear them saying they want to be "the most royal, exalted, praised and admired one." That may be Mr. Joecks' particular fetish, and the young persons we listen to talk about...
