It's because all of our students deserve an amazing public education. #IEAstronger

IT'S BECAUSE...

- our teachers matter.
- our support staff matter.
- every child deserves to be noticed.
- our students deserve the best education.
- its not just a 40-hour work week.
- decades old technology just isn't cutting it.
- we need safe schools now.
- we deserve fair pay for our work.
- we believe in our students' bright futures.
- our schools should be fully funded.
- our school buildings are falling apart.
- extra-curriculars are important.

Read the TAA's official statement on USCIS's proposed visa policy changes: The Teaching Assistants Association at the University of Wisconsin-Madison expresses its deepest concern for the recent changes proposed by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services on the conditions in which international students in the U.S can accrue "unlawful presence". The Teaching Assistants Association at the University of Wisconsin-Madison expresses its deepest concern for the recent changes proposed by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services on the conditions in which international students in the U.S can accrue "unlawful presence". The proposed changes would create unnecessary burden on international students, their peers, and the academic community as a whole.

Under the current policy, international students can accrue "unlawful presence" in the U.S. after they are found to have violated the terms of their visa. After 180 days of "unlawful presence", they can be barred from returning to the U.S. for up to 10 years. The proposed changes would declare an international student as "unlawfully present" in the country from the moment they are said to have violated the terms of their visa, even if they do it unknowingly and are not notified. This change generates deep concern in terms of students' rights to be informed, understand, and contest any allegations. This situation creates great uncertainty that can harm not only international students at UW-Madison, but also the larger university community.

International students are key members of our community. Research, learning and teaching projects require a diversity of perspectives, experiences, and labor of international students. All undergraduate students benefit when they learn with and are taught by their international peers. As equal members of the UW-Madison community, we believe that international students deserve stability and certainty regarding their visa status. The uncertainty introduced by the proposed policy change would harm the advancement of university projects, stifle innovation, and impede instruction goals at UW-Madison.

By limiting the possibility to contest alleged violations of visa status, the proposed policy change would add considerable legal burden and emotional vulnerability for international students. Furthermore, the changes would disproportionately affect lower income students who lack access to legal council. This policy further disadvantages these students who already face severe limitations to obtaining an education.

We believe that all students, regardless of their country of origin and economic means, should have the right to complete their studies and participate in innovation and instruction at UW-Madison. The TAA stands in solidarity with international students to advance education, research, and teaching in a dignified and free environment.
